About me:

I am Sofia Rewa Ida Bhutia, I was born in Dehradun, India on the 16th of August, 1996. I did joint home schooling till the 4th grade while living in India with my Mother (German) and Father (Indian). While growing up I always spoke three languages, English, German, and Hindi. After 4th grade I went to Wales, England for a semester while my mother did mission training and I went to Lakefield Middle School. After that, we moved to Xining, China and I stayed there from half of 5th grade all the way through graduation from Xining International Academy (XIA) and further.

During my time at XIA, I participated in every school activity I could, whether it was mandatory or not. I was in plays, sports teams, musicals, and competitions. I also did a wide range of charity work through XIA, which includes feeding and clothing the homeless, going to orphanages and putting on programs and spending time with the kids, going to hospitals after the Sichuan and Yushu earthquakes and helping there, and teaching ESL classes in our school. I also took AP (advanced placement) classes in Macroeconomics, Calculus, English Composition, and Chinese.

Outside of school I started working with the Starfish Project, which is an organization that helps exploited women get out of prostitution. During that time I was also a youth group leader for the expatriot youth who lived in Xining. After I graduated high school I continued working with the Starfish Project, and teaching English, as well as did a Semester of Chinese language studies at Qinghai

Minzu Daxue. After the semester finished I continued teaching and working with Starfish while I was still living in China, and then I moved to India. In India I was having dental work done, getting official documents, getting my driving license, and doing a TESOL Certificate and Diploma course.

I then moved to Germany, because my mother got cancer. While here I tried to look for a place to study, and I also worked and got my drivers license which I could not finish in India. After my mother moved back to China, I moved to Berlin and after some job searching, I found a job at a big company and worked in an office with many other colleagues. Since I was still wanting to get a Bachelor, I decided that I should quit my job and continue looking for a place to study. I got rejected from German University, and even went to Switzerland to try there to no avail. Finally I sent my transcripts to a family friend in the Netherlands who works in college recruitment. She found that I would be eligible for admission, so I found a course that I would like, and applied.

After I got accepted, I went to India for four months because my father needed help shifting and getting rid of everything from our guesthouse. When we finished, I went to China to teach again so that I would be able to save up money for my studies in the Netherlands. At the end of August in 2018 I moved to the Netherlands and am now in University studying Communications and Multimedia Design also known as User Experience Design.
